HOW WE CAN HELP.

When these young men are out on the battlefield or in the trenches it becomes our duty to see that they are fed. Our Allies must have more food than they can raise, and to them we must send more than we can really spare. Looking forward to doing this we must make a change in our daily habits, a change that can easily be made and must be made.

It must be recognized that we are one solid America—not white Americans, nor black Americans, but all Americans. We have all been happy together, and now come the hardships of war. Can we suffer together, if need be? Can we go to the battle with a solid front? Within our race we must unite—unite our local, state and national organizations, for it is through these that we must carry to all of our people information about the national need of conservation of food. Our women must do their part. They must willingly give their signatures to the United States Food Administration pledge. If you are at the head of an organization, or even a member, whether it be local, state or federal, see to it that Prof. A. U. Craig, United States Food Administration, is put in touch with your organization at once and literature will be sent to it.

Let us look at some of the things we can do in the direction outlined. We can help to win the war and to furnish the necessary food by changing our diet, by seeing to it that there is no waste in our kitchens, in our dining rooms and through our garbage cans.

We must cut down on our dishes. That is, we must not have so many courses at our homes, and cook only what can be used at a meal, and if there be any left over use it in another meal. Have fewer banquets and big spreads. There must be common economical living until after this war. Use less sugar, less wheat flour, less bacon and the like, and make your meals, as far as possible, from the things produced in your own garden, or in the community where you live. This will help, and the request is due to the increasing necessity of using our transportation system for supplies connected with the war. By this the usual transfer of foodstuffs between different sections of the country has been interrupted and this puts upon every family the patriotic necessity of increasing as far as feasible the use of foodstuff produced locally.

Safety Life Preserver.

A new life preserver includes with the cork jacket a complete breathing apparatus. This is in the form of a light metal chamber, connected with a spout which rises two or three feet above the water level. The metal chamber is also connected with a tube which is joined to the face mask through which the wearer breathes.

Woeful Lament.

Her grown-up sister and cousin were dressing for a masquerade and Ethel was watching them and begging to "go too." Finally her sister said firmly: "Now, Ethel, don't be absurd. You can't go, so do stop crying." Whereupon Ethel threw herself on the bed weeping and sobbing out, "O, O, why was I born too late."

Bobbie's Real Trouble.

Bobbie was away from home to stay all night for the first time. He tried to be brave, but when bedtime came his host noticed tears creep into his eyes. "What's the trouble, little man," he asked, "are you homesick?" "No," replied Bobbie, quite truthfully, "I'm awaysick."

THEY SAY

—That "hard times" are not as bad as many would have you believe.

—That a fool is usually known by his arguments.

—That there are some people who move every month. Why?

—That the Negro who objects to the use of the word Negro (capitalized) in speaking of the race and its affairs is usually either an ass or an idiot—quite often both.

—That the reason why many Missourians are successful is that you've "got to show them" before they ever give up trying anything. Yes, sah, Boss.

—That the way "cullud fo'ks" are cleaning up their old shotguns, rabbits are going to catch h— this winter. Well, we must eat.

—That the Negro who misses hearing Roland Hayes or buying a ticket for such a worthy cause is surely lacking in both loyalty and race pride.

—That those people who don't pay their subscription are usually the first ones to kick if their names are left out of some social function sent in for publication.

—That a certain brother who usually goes to work early got a hunch, hid himself and listened to a rich, racy conversation between his wife and an insurance collector for about fifteen minutes, after which he emerged from his hiding place and proceeded to "wear out" the collector while wifey hiked to the tall timber.
